HIS MAN FRIDAY.

Influence Goes With the Office of President's Private Secretary.

POSSIBILITIES OF THE POSITION.

An Ambitious Incumbent May Make it a Stepping Stone to Great Things. Col. Dan Lamont's Success-More Confidential than a Cabluet Officer.

Washington Correspondence New York Press.

One of the clerks in the office of the geological survey at Washington is Stanley Brown. He draws a salary of $1,400 a year and lives in the quaint little art house on Massachusetts avenue, which George Kennan used to occupy. Stanley Brown was the private secretary of President Garfield during his brief term in the white house, and he afterwards married Mollie Garfield, the murdered President's daughter.

Colonel Dan Lamont, the private secretary of President Cleveland four years ago, is the representative in New York of enormous corporate interests, and his yearly income is in the ten thousands. The contrast between the positions of these two men is a good illustration of what a man may make of the position of private secretary to the President of the United States. Mr. Lamont made friends who recognized his business apportunities when he left his official position which have put, him well toward the front rank of young business men in New York city. Mr. Brown went out of the white house still a young man of limited business experience and went back to Ohio, drifting finally to Washington again to accept a minor post in the government service. It is possible that Mr. Brown is just as happy, or even happier, in his sphere than Colonel Lamont. He has a charming home and a delightful circle Mr. Lamont made friends who recoga charming home and a delightful circle of friends. But from a worldly view-point he has falled where Colonel Lamont has succeeded.

COLONEL LAMONT'S SUCCESS.

There is no doubt that Colonel Lamont's success is due in some measure to his work in the white house. He was a trained and accomplished newspaper man when he came to Washington, but he was notrecognized as a business man or a man of great executive capacity. The men he met while he was in the public service made it possible for him to take the place which he has taken in New York. To an ambitious and capable man the office of the President's private secretary offers exceptional advantages for promotion and progress. He cannot forward his own interests at the expense of his chief. He must be a thoroughly loyal man, and ready at all times to sucrifice himself for the President. But he can make friends among public men who call on the President, and these men will have opportunity in after years to do him many a good turn. a trained and accomplished newspaper od turn.

a good turn.

The responsibilities of a private secretary are very great, and he is never at rest. The least of his duties is to answer for the President a greater part of the mail which comes to the white house addressed to the executive; yet it is in this relation that he becomes most fa-miliar to the people of the United States. In his confidential capacity as States. In his confidential capacity as the President's adviser and agent and friend he is little known except to that immediate circle which sees and knows what is going on in the President's official household. Answering the mall is no trivial labor though. The private secretary has to weed out from the correspondence everything which does not immediately concern the President, and to take to him only such things as demand his personal attention. So when the private secretary appears in the President's office with a bundle of papers it is a premonition of hard work. President's office with a bundle of pa-pers it is a premonition of hard work. President Harrison said not long ago in pleasant mood: "I am getting almost to hate the sight of Mr. Halford. For whenever he comes in it means work for me." If the President can feel so about Mr. Halford, who is discretion itself, how thoroughly could an indis-creet man make himself a nuisance to his chief in this position!

creet man make himself a nuisance to his chief in this position!

Very few of the callers who come to the White House see the President without first passing the ordeal of an interview with the private secretary. "What is your business with the President?" is the invariable formula which greets any one who is a stranger to the greet of the secretary office. Sometimes the Sometimes offices. stranger replies that that is his busi-ness; sometimes he makes plain his mission without needless delay. But whether he answers immediately or answers after some delay he must give a good reason for claiming an interview before he can get the President's ear. Mr. Halford keeps a tablet on his table Mr. Halford keeps a tablet on his table on which he enters the memoranda concerning the President's callers, which he lays before the President late in the day. Most of the visitors he himself can dispose of without trouble. Some of them are persistent and some have claims on the President's attention; but a majority of the people who call at the White House have business which the private secretary can handle as quickly as the President himself, or even more quickly. Sometimes an intruder penetrates to the President's office. Mr. Halford found a well dressed woman in carnest conversation with the President one morning. She was a domented woman who had come all the way from Iowa to claim a fortune which she believed was coming to her from the estate of King Alfonso, to her from the estate of King Alfonso, of Spain. Mr. Halford had talked to the woman before and he recognized her. "I know this lady's business, Mr. President," he said gently, "and I can attend to it, perhaps, quite as well as you," and he led her away.

MORE CONFIDENTIAL THAN A CABINET

OFFICER. The private secretary occupies a relation to the President more confidential than that of any of the members of his cabinet. He is with the President at all times, knows his most confidential affairs and is called into consultation on least their consultation on affairs and is called into consultation on almost every conceivable subject. The President will say to him not infrequently: "Find out what is thought of this or that," and the private secretary must feel the public pulse and report the result of his investigations. And in making the necessary inquiries he must be eminently tactful. He must not give to any one the impression that he is acting for the President in what he is acting for the President in what he is doing. To do this would be to anticipate the President's action, perhaps in a matter of appointment. When the President has some great office to fill he cannot depend entirely upon the papers which are filed by the applicants for the position; perhaps the man whom he wishes to appoint is not seeking the place and has no papers on file. In order to determine his eligibility the President makes inquiry through his President makes inquiry through his private secretary, and upon the result of that inquiry very often depends his action in most important matters.

Mr. Halford, who has been the private secretary of President Harrison through the whole of his term, knew General Harrison in Indiana for more than twenty years before his election. He had been with him in politics, and General Harrison had learned to know him and to respect him both for his ability and his integrity. Mr. Halford's relations to the President since he has been in the white house have been quite as personal and confidential as those of Colonel Lamont with President Clevoland. It is true of Mr. Harrison as of Mr. Clevoland that he admits few to his confidence, and that he is thoroughly independent. There has been no "deputy President" at the white house for at least eight years. But in his confidential relation as private secretary the President has probably consulted Mr. Halford more than he has any other man and relied quite as much on his judgment. The secretary of state he consults about matters relating to diplomatic affairs, and the secretary of the treasury about finance, but both of these subjects he discusses with his private secretary. Much of this discussion of business matters take place when the President and Mr. Halford are walking about Washington, for they are frequently companions in walking or driving, and affairs of state are quite as likely to be discussed then as at any other time.

Mr. Halford has been single-minded in his devotion to his duty as the President's private secretary. He has given

Mr. Hallord has been single-mined in his devotion to his duty as the President's private secretary. He has given no thought to the future. He may return to journalism, probably he will. And it is very likely that he will make Indianapolis again his home. But this he has not determined yet.

THE FISTIC CARNIVAL

May Prove a Failure if the Club Don't Get

New ORLEANS, LA., Dec. 19.—Three of the six great pugilistic events that were to make up the spring sporting carnivals here are virtually off, and both the Crescent City and Olympic clubs are on the lookout for fighters still. There will be no conflict in dates between the clubs or Mardi-Gras festivities. The Olympic tournament, March 1, 2 and 3, lacks an event for the open-1, 2 and 3, lacks an event for the opening night unless the wobbling match between John and Billy Murphy is patched up. A better attraction, however, is needed, and if Gallagher and Dempsey are coupled it is secured. But Dempsey's refusal to fight LaBlanche makes it certain that he will also decline to meet Gallagher. Goddard and Slavin cannot be got together, and the Murphy's only are in sight. The Croscent City Club has postponed its carnival to the first week in April. It's Burge-Myer match has gone, and Dixon and Griffin are not agreed yet, and lean toward the Coney Island outfit, anyway, so the club has just one event made, Fitzsimmons and Hall.

The Use and Abuse of Whisker. The Use and Abase or Whiskey.
This subject could be dwelt upon to a considerable length, and yet much would remain untold, but all agree that the use, the proper use of pure rye whiskey is an absolute necessity, especiwhiskey is an absolute necessity, especially so now, when nature insists upon being stimulated. All regular physicians prescribe rye whiskey, and justly claim that Klein's Silver Age and Duquesne Whiskies are most reliable. They do this not only because they have tried them but because the leading hospitals use them—find them the best stimulants in the world. Silver Age sells for $1.50 and Duquesne for $1.25 per full quart. For sale by all dealers and druggists. Ask for them or send to Max Klein, $2 Federal Street, Allegheny, Pa.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.
Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the government lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detriot treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones."—Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and after the use of two and a half bottles was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle iree at Logan Drug Co.'s drug store. A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

I SUPPERED for more than ten years with that dreadful disease, catarrh, and used every available medicine which was recommended to me. I cannot thank you enough for the relief which Ely's Cream Balm has afforded me.—Emanuel Meyers, Winfield, L. L. N. Y.

In a recent letter to the manufacturers, Mr. A. W. Baldridge, Millersville, Ill., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remercy gives the best satisfaction of any cough medicine I handle, and as a seller leads all other preparations in this market. I recommend it because it is the best medicine I ever handled for coughs, colds and croup." For sale by C. R. Goetze, W. W. Irwin, W. S. McCullough, C. Menkemeller, S. L. Brice, J. Coleman, C. feature of speculation was a bad break in the industrial stocks, due chiefly to the export movement of gold, which has tightened up the money market and has caused the banks to discriminate against those securities as collateral in loans. The situation was aggravated this morning by the announcement that $8,90,000 gold had been taken for shipment to Europe by steamers. This alarmed small holders and evidently made an impression upon some of the larger operators who proceeded to liquidate quickly. Before they had progressed very far in the operation, however, the members of certain stock took fright and there followed a general strainble to get out. Chicago Gas was the first to reflect the selling of long stock on a large scale. It broke rapidly from 50% to St amid intense excitement and was promptly followed by a drop in Distilling and Cattle Feeding from 64 to 57. National Corlage common. National Landamerican Sugar, General Electric and National Linseed Oil dropped rapidly. The sharp drop naturally brought out a good deal of stock most opportunity of the same continuous control of the same control of the sa dustrial stocks, due chiefly to the export move
